 - Managing a baby or child who is bleeding and suffering from shock.
 - Managing a baby or child who is suffering from anaphylactic shock.
 - Managing a baby or child who has had an electric shock.
 - Managing a baby or child who has burns or scalds.
 - Managing a baby or child who has a suspected fracture.
 - Managing a baby or child with a head, neck or back injury.
 - Managing a baby or child who is suspected of being poisoned.
 - Managing a baby or child with a foreign body in eyes, ears or nose.
 - Managing a baby or child with an eye injury.
 - Managing a baby or child with a bite or sting.
 - Managing a baby or child who is suffering from the effects or extreme heat or cold.
 - Managing a baby or child having a diabetic emergency, asthma attack, allergic reaction, meningitis or febrile convulsion.
 - Understand the role and responsibilities of the Paediatric First Aider, including appropriate contents of a first aid box and the need for recording accidents and incidents.
- We can offer the two day PFA training face to face as recommended by Ofsted, but where this is not possible we can offer the two day PFA training course as a combination of proportionate 'blended' online/practical provision. 'Day One' is practical based and allows the trainer to check ability and assess students' breadth of understanding through both theory and practical assessment before completing 'Day Two' online. At the end of 'Day One' the trainer will be able to provide a 'Pass' or 'Fail' assessment, with appropriate feedback to the student and their employer. Knowledge of the theory of first aid is assessed at the end of 'Day Two'.
 - Our PFA training courses are delivered by an appropriately qualified and experienced PFA training instructor. All of our trainers are experts in their fields; from the medical profession, the fire services and the childcare industry.
 - Our Paediatric First Aid trainers all hold the required teaching qualification, insurance and DBS check which is required at the time of recruitment.
 - All of our trainers are able to competently assess a student's understanding of theory and practical techniques.
